

Does Lesotho have a waste management policy?

Lesotho has legal instruments addressing waste management issues to some extent, however there is a need to update them in order to address present environmental challenges, particularly waste management concerns such as development of strategy for waste, construction and management of landfills, promoting and supporting circular economy.

What are the legal instruments for waste management in Lesotho?

Relevant legal instruments are; Constitution of Lesotho 1993, Environment Act 2008, Local Government Act 2007, Hazardous Health Care Waste Management Regulations 2012, to mention a few.

How is waste generated in Lesotho?

Waste generation in Lesotho follows patterns of human settlement and socio-economic development. This is linked to the generation of domestic, industrial, medical, agricultural, construction, education, electrical and electronic wastes. Data on the generation of waste continues to be scarce due to capacity.
