

What is the Atlas of the solar and wind energy potential of Paraguay?

The Atlas of the solar and wind energy potential of Paraguay is one of the tools developed by Itaipu to make visible data of great relevance for developers of these technologies interested in new generation projects in this country. That document reflects a promising future for solar technology.

Is Paraguay a future energy exporter?

Paraguay is a net energy exporter with hydro and biomass resources contributing 82% of the country's final energy supply over the last decade. Yet a growing economy coupled with increasing energy demand particularly in the transport sector, has encouraged the uptake of fossil fuels, prompting a holistic assessment of the country's future energy.

What is the main energy source in Paraguay?

From the perspective of energy demand, the main energy source is biomass (44%), followed by hydrocarbons (40%) and, in a distant third place, electricity (16%). The main source of energy produced in Paraguay is thus the least used in the country.

Why is Paraguay a renewable country?

Paraguay has one of the highest proportions of renewable energy in South America. Hydropower constitutes around 99.5% of the installed electricity capacity. This makes it highly dependent on the rivers that feed the country's main hydroelectric plants, from where most of the electricity produced is exported to neighboring countries.

Can Paraguay become a green hydrogen producer?

Paraguay's ambition to become a green hydrogen producer and regional exporter is also a key motivating factor for its pursuit of higher shares of renewables. In June 2021, the Government of Paraguay and the International Development Bank developed a roadmap for the use of green hydrogen in the country.

What is Paraguay's wind potential?

The report also highlights Paraguay's wind potential, identified as medium to high quality, which was found to be particularly concentrated in the north-western region, specifically in the department of Boquerón.
